ESRS Set 1 as per Delegated Act 2023	[Draft] Amended ESRS S2 Workers in the value chain	Comment/Rationale
AR 6. Impacts on value chain workers can originate in the undertaking's strategy or business model in a number of different ways. For example, impacts may relate to the undertaking's value proposition (such as providing lowest cost products or services, or high-speed delivery, in ways that put pressure on labour rights in the upstream and downstream value chains), its value chain (such as relying on commodities of unclear provenance, without visibility on impacts on workers), or its cost structure and the revenue model (e.g. shifting inventory risk to suppliers, with knock-on effects on the labour rights of their workers). AR 7. Impacts on value chain workers that originate in the strategy or the business model can also bring material risks to the undertaking. For example, in the context of a pandemic or other severe health crisis, undertakings that rely on contingent labour with little to no access to sick care and health benefits may face severe operational and business continuity risks as workers have no choice but to keep working while sick, further exacerbating the spread of the disease and causing major supply chain breakdowns. Another example is where selling goods premised on cheapest prices for customers create operational risks as suppliers under extreme price pressure may sub-contract production, leading to lower quality, and a longer, less transparent, and less controllable supply chain. 	AR 7. The undertaking shall present its actions in a way that allows an understanding of the connections that exist between the interaction of different topics in accordance with Chapters 3.2 and 9.1 of [Draft] Amended ESRS 1. This applies to the measures taken to mitigate negative impacts on its workers in the value chain that arise from the transition to a greener, climate-neutral economy. In cases where innovation and restructuring occur, this could lead to mine closures or increased mining of minerals needed for the transition to a sustainable economy and solar panel production. Conversely, positive impacts may arise from initiatives such as updating purchasing practices, capacity-building to supply chain workers. In addition, present and/or expected external developments that influence whether dependencies turn into risks for just transition is another aspect that could lead to actions.	Moved  Example from set 1 SBM-3 paragraph 11 c) to illustrate the type of climate transition actions for ESRS S2.
